

RECENT DEATHS.

Williams.

David Williams died Saturday after a week's illness following a shock. He came to St. Johnsbury 20 years ago as division engineer for the Connecticut & Passumpsic and St. Johnsbury and Lake Champlain divisions of the Boston and Maine and in 1913 retired from regular work although he continued to do a good deal of engineering. He was a loyal member of Grace Methodist church, holding the office of trustee at the time of his death. David Williams was born in Holly Head, North Wales, Feb. 6, 1854, the son of Griffith and Sinal Williams. When he was three months old his father, who was a mining engineer, was sent to Canada by the firm which employed him and located near Richmond, P. Q. The son was educated at St. Francis college, Richmond, and Quebec Military college and served his time as second lieutenant in the Canadian militia. He was engineer for the construction of the Herford railroad in New Hampshire, the Orford Mountain railroad in Quebec, was employed on the location of portions of the Canadian Pacific around the Great Lakes, in double tracking the Sullivan County road (N. H.), and the Vermont Valley and later came to St. Johnsbury where he not only held a position with the Boston and Maine but was consulting engineer for the White River, the Woodstock, the Maine Central, the Central Vermont, the Montpelier and Wells River railroads, the state highway commission, the public service commission and the state of Vermont. He was a member of the American, Canadian and Vermont societies of engineers and had been president of the Vermont society. He is survived by his wife who was formerly Miss Lucina Mackay of Cookshire, P. Q., the sisters, Mrs. W. H. Killingsbeck of Montreal and Mrs. G. E. Boast of Richmond, P. Q., both of whom were here during his illness. The funeral was held from the house Sunday afternoon, Rev. George A. Martin officiating. The honorary pall bearers were H. E. Folsom, Mayo, R. Q. Hamilton, Harry Blodgett, A. J. Corrivue, Charles Gillfillan, S. D. Atwood of St. Johnsbury and John Curlew and Arthur Mackay of Lawrence, Mass. The remains were taken Monday morning to Richmond where services were held that afternoon at the Methodist church, Rev. J. S. Selter officiating, and interment was in the cemetery at Melbourne.

Macdonald

William H. Macdonald died very suddenly Saturday morning at his home in Fairbanks village. He was at work in his yard trimming trees and passed away instantly from heart trouble. A strange coincidence is that both his brothers died as he did, his brother Peter two years ago and his brother James five years ago. He had lived in St. Johnsbury for more than 50 years and until three years ago held the position of foreman of the blacksmith shop at the Fairbanks factory. He was twice married, first to Angela Albee of St. Johnsbury Center, five of whose children survive their father, Mrs. Margaret Anthony of Tarrytown, N. Y., Mrs. Elmer Fuller, Mrs. E. E. Sargent and Mrs. James Walker of St. Johnsbury and Mrs. Henry Levalley of Hardwick. His second wife was May Lunnie of Colerain, P. Q., who survives him with two children, William and Jennie who live at home. He also leaves two sisters, Mrs. Margaret Ellis of Montpelier and Mrs. Isabel Smith of Manchester, N. H. The funeral was Tuesday at two o'clock, Rev. Frederick B. Richards officiating, and interment was at Mount Pleasant cemetery.

Belden.

Henry C. Belden, one time judge of the district court and for many years prominent in Minnesota legal circles, died at his home in Minneapolis last week Tuesday night. He had been in ill health for nearly three years. Judge Belden was born in Vermont 74 years ago. At the age of 18 years he attended school in Barnston, eastern Canada. After two years there he taught school at Crompton, Canada, and in 1861 began the study of law at Lyndon. He was admitted to practice in this state in 1863. Later he took part in the politics of his native state, becoming a member of the legislature and also serving as a prosecuting attorney. He was married to Caroline H. Kimball at Walden, April 9, 1865, afterwards going to McIndoe Falls, later returning to Lyndon and then going to St. Johnsbury where he was senior member of the law firm of Belden, Ide and Stafford. Upon going to Minneapolis in 1884, Judge Belden went into partnership with J. B. Gilliland. He was elected judge of the district court in 1894, resigning about four years later to join the law firm of Hahn, Belden & Hawley. Upon the death of General Hahn the firm became Belden & Hawley. Later Judge Jamieson became a member of the firm. In the late years Judge Belden has been associated with the firm of Hahn, Belden & Hawley. While in his prime, Judge Belden handled much important litigation. The Industrial exposition case, calling for dissolution of the exposition, affecting many Minneapolis people, was one of the important cases handled. Judge Belden was a member of the Minnesota Bar association and took a prominent part in its proceedings. He is survived by five children, George K. Belden, Harry Belden, Mrs. A. J. Wagner, Mrs. Richard G. Fisher and Miss Agnes G. Belden. His wife died several years ago.

PATRONIZE YOUR NEWSPAPER

It Should Have The Job Printing With The Free Advertising.

The Newport Express and Standard in reviewing 18 years work of its present editor very appropriately says:—

Still, there are other things—things which the Express and Standard has never before touched upon—more irritating than all the additional expenses that accrue. It is the apparent negligence, or thoughtlessness on the part of the community in withholding job patronage from a newspaper plant. If a newspaper is of any special benefit to a town or county, or tends to uplift, or works to promote the general welfare of the people, and allows an open door to all civic, social and religious organizations, with free advertising for the sales and events of each, even though local conditions may be criticized at times, the paper should be worthy of job patronage, and the greater the patronage the more interesting and acceptable would be the paper sent out. Three years ago in the county of Sarasota, Fla., the official board, in one of their meetings, passed a unanimous vote to turn all the county and town printing into the local newspaper plant. Why? "Because," as they said, "we consider the local newspaper of so much benefit to our town and county interests as to be worthy of all the patronage we can furnish." Was ever such a vote passed in Orleans county, or in the matter of that, in any other county in Vermont?

For eighteen years the Express and Standard has printed gratis all advertising notices for church societies, chicken-pie suppers, food sales, club and civic meetings, school and local entertainments, all of which has cost money and valuable space, and for the pleasure of doing it—if it was a pleasure—have seen, in the majority of cases, the printing of handbills, circulars and programs relating to all these affairs, and which should have served as a little remuneration for newspaper space, go to other points.

Not only this, but when the entertainments advertised were all over, the whole blooming programs of each—which we did not print—were brought into the newspaper office to publish as local news. A big thing to kick about, isn't it? Especially when we do not believe in monopoly, and that it should be the right of every person to transact their business just where and with whom they choose. But business is business. If a newspaper is not worthy of patronage in job printing through agencies that ask for local notices in the paper free, why should it print gratis the local notices to help these agencies out? This is a question open for consideration.

STRONG AND WELL AS EVER.

Fred Smith, 325 Main St., Green Bay, Wis., says: "I suffered a long time with a very weak back. Foley Kidney Pills completely relieved me of all soreness and pain, and I now am strong and well as ever." Winter aggravates symptoms of kidney trouble; cold weather makes aching joints, sore muscles, and irregular bladder action more unbearable. Foley Kidney Pills help the kidneys eliminate pain-causing poisons.
